Employee turnover is a reflection of many different factors. Some are internal to the company, for example: low wage scale, problems in the organizational culture or difficult working conditions.

There are other factors that impact turnover and they reside within the individual employees -- factors such as a casual attitude about work, being easily annoyed or offended, unwillingness to work certain hours, poor motivation, resistance to supervision, inability to follow to company rules. These are things that influence turnover most in the first year of employment.

The STAY inventory evaluates a number of factors that people bring them to the job that influence their retention potential for a year -- personality traits and attitudes about work.

- A High score indicates that this person has a high potential for staying with your company for a year.
- A Moderate score indicates that this person has a moderate potential for staying with your company for a year.
- A Low score indicates that this person has a high potential for not being able to stay with your company for a year.

In addition to using the suggested interview questions on the next page, Euphony HR can also offer other services to address turnover such as supervisor training, focus groups, exit interviews, employee attitude surveys.

Suggested Interview Questions

- Tell me why you feel this job would fit well with your interests and your lifestyle. (Listen for past comments that reflect an awareness of what he or she is getting into by accepting a job at your company.)
- Can you work overtime? When / when can you not?
- What kind of problems would arise when you have to work_____ shift(s)?
- A few people come into a job with the idea of staying there the rest of their lives. How long do you think you will stay with this company?
